Ever since I can remember I've always wanted to be a doctor. My neighbours and I used to play doctors and nurses in my room till all of our teddies were cured and no more complaints were heard. Broken arm? No problem. I'll give you an injection for the pain. Flu? Here's some antibiotic and cough syrup. And so on....

My parents were proud and encouraged me to pursue a career as a doctor.

Of course to be a doctor was not as easy as it seemed. At school, I was considered as a straight-A-swot. While other kids were playing or going to parties, I was either studying or sleeping so I could get up early in the morning to go to school. I was that careful. I remember studying till midnight.

When I was in my third year of university, I decided to volunteer at a local hospital as a male assistant (nurse). I heard people's life stories and tried to relieve some of the pain away.

Now, I'm a doctor. I've never given up listening to my patients. People badly want someone to listen and share their burden. I've been doing that since my teddy bear childhood.
